BAILEY MILITARY INSTITUTE

COL. F. N. K. BAILEY, Superintendent

Greenwood, South Carolina

Buildings modern in every appointment.

Faculty composed of ten capable and experienced educators.

United States Army officer in charge Military Department.

Expenses moderate.

A MILITARY INSTITUTE with the experience and prestige of twenty-three years.

The Institute has splendid new brick buildings with modern equipment—equal, if not superior, to any boys' school in the South—including steam heat, improved electric lights, ample toilet facilities and shower baths and hot and cold running water in every room. The location is beautiful, being an elevated tract of ten acres just inside the city limits and overlooking the city and surrounding country. The campus and drill grounds are exceptionally fine and well adapted to the uses of the school.

The arrangement of the buildings, the courses of study, and the plan of the work are the outgrowth of years of successful experience of the management.

The constant aim has been the health, comfort, training and instruction of boys and young men. The school produces mainly men—physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. We believe that the best product of the most advanced civilization is an educated Christian gentleman.

The personnel of the faculty determines the quality of a school. There must be strong, manly, Christian character, thorough education and successful experience in managing and teaching boys. We believe that these terms describe the faculty of Bailey Military Institute, which is composed of ten competent men.

DISCIPLINE.

We make a careful study of every cadet's health, disposition, character, tendencies and then apply the methods that will develop him along the most desirable lines. The development of the student in the Institute. He is trained, and taught as a son in an environment that is conducive to the most desirable results, and free from distracting and neutralizing influences.

The superintendent, his family, two other members of the faculty and their families, and five unmarried professors live in the dormitories.

We endeavor to place around the cadets the maximum amount of home-like influences.

The school is select, the cadets being limited to the number that may receive individually the care of the faculty and officers.

Education has been defined as: "A debt due from parent to child." Of course you intend to pay this debt.

The only point that is worrying you is the medium to be used. Let us advise you here, for we have loved and taught and trained many boys. You want your boy to grow into a strong, manly man, a man trained to overcome obstacles, and to make the most of the talents entrusted to him.

We know this to be your wish; and we have developed a system of training that, under normal conditions, guarantees the fulfillment of your desire. This system has as its foundation the military system in use at West Point. On this foundation has been erected, by means of many years' experience with Southern boys, a system which makes for success in the after life of your boy.

Discipline is the cornerstone of the structure. There are, we know, varying ideas of "discipline." The word as we use it means simply THE HABIT OF OBEDIENCE to constitute authority. Not merely obedience but the cheerful and unquestioning habit of obedience. This discipline when backed by the military spirit and accomplished almost miraculously. And over and above all, we assure you that you will not have to DRIVE your boy. A few months with us will make him want to stay.

THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

The military feature is invaluable in the training of boys. It teaches readiness, promptness, obedience, self-control. It induces erectness of body, correct carriage, neatness, self-respect. This is its object, and not militarism.

The Military Department of the school is conducted as nearly as possible after the methods in use at West Point, without partaking of their more rigid and unsympathetic features. There are daily drills, frequent inspections, parades and all duties and ceremonies that go to make up the routine work of a military post.

During the whole of the year the quarters of the cadets are under special and frequent inspection each day, and there is weekly a full dress inspection, at which time both the quarters of the cadets and the cadets themselves are carefully inspected by the Commandant, Maj. W. D. Workman. At the frequent formations each day the clothing, shoes, etc., of the cadets are inspected, so that it is next to impossible for a cadet to present other than a neat personal appearance.

The Institute is recognized by United States Government and is supplied by the War Department with full Military Equipment similar to that issued to the best Military Colleges and Schools of the South. Special recognition by the War Department is shown by the detail of an "Active Officer" of the Regular Army, Lieutenant Geo. C. Bowen, 20th Infantry, U. S. A.

THE LOCATION.

No better location for a school for boys could be found than the city of Greenwood. The city is noted for its healthfulness. It is remarkably free from contaminating influences. It has never licensed the sale of intoxicants, and the laws are enforced. It has many large churches and able preachers. It has eminent physicians and specialists. It has unsurpassed railroad connections. The people are noted for their high moral, social and spiritual tone, and they possess enterprise and enthusiasm for high ideals that are contagious.

The expenses are moderate. We invite your consideration of the merits of the school. The enrollment during the season just closed was 192 cadets, the largest in the history of the Institute. Fifty-one others who were late in forwarding their applications were unable to be entered, and were compelled to go elsewhere.

If you contemplate patronizing the Bailey Military Institute, it is important that application be made at an early date as practicable. The twenty-fourth session will begin September 24. The handsome illustrated catalogue will be mailed to any one who is interested.
